Finishing Elastics

"Finishing Elastics" is the process we use at Hulme Orthodontics when a patient is getting close to being finished with treatment. You may remember at the start of treatment an assistant placed separators (spacers) between the patient's first molars to make a little space to get the bands around the teeth.

In the "Finishing Elastics" process we will be progressively removing the molar bands to allow those spaces to close. It will take several appointments to complete the finishing process. During these appointments it is critical that the patient wear their elastics to prevent delays in going on to the next step, which may mean keeping the braces on longer.

Dr. Hulme's criteria for taking the braces off is that the teeth are straight, there are no spaces, the bite fits together well, and the patient is happy with the end result. Once all criteria are met we'll schedule to take the braces off!
